POINTS OUT DANGER OF CORN SHREDDERS

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE]

Madison, Wis., Sept. 25.—If we could make every farm boy and the men to exercise caution while operating corn shredders, there would be fewer missing hands and arms in rural Wisconsin. Few manufacturing industries involving bloody hazards are more dangerous than the corn shredder, and yet we usually think of farming as a safe occupation, said an officer of the industrial commission today.

According to a survey made by the industrial commission in 1911, losses in one year on corn shredders were four deaths, six arms and twenty-one hands. Each year the losses are lower because of improved guards on the newer types of corn shredders. However, a large number of old-style shredders without adequate guards are in operation; these are the ones that demand the annual sacrifice of flesh and bone and blood.

The industrial commission's rules for operators of corn shredders which have been widely distributed for five years, are as follows:

"Never use the hands to unclog the rolls. Use a stick or stop the machine."

"Every husker or shredder should be equipped with a self-stop so the operator will not have to stand within reach of the rolls."

"If it is always dangerous for the operator to cut bands while standing within reach of the shredding rolls, especially if the knife is tied to the wrist."

Every gear should be covered to make it impossible for fingers to get caught."

Mullen Stalks for Funerals. The mullen stalk has many uses. The Romans dipped the stalk into tallow and used it as a funeral torch. In the middle ages it was used as a candlewick by many people. It is reputed to have medicinal virtues for both man and beast, smoking dry mullen leaves and drinking mullen tea being resorted to by those having colds. It won, in England, by reason of its reputation as a healer of cattle diseases, the name of "bullock's lungwort."

WANT A BOY? JUDGE MAXFIELD HAS ONE; BRIGHT, ACTIVE, 14

Court Thinks Better Place for Lad is on Farm Rather Than in One of State's Reform Schools.

WANTED—Some Rock county farmer or city business man, desiring a bright and active lad about fourteen years of age about his place and willing to take boy into home and see that the youngster gets usual amount of school work and play that average growing American youth should have. For further particulars apply at Janesville municipal court, H. L. Maxfield, judge.

Against the opinion of a fourteen old lad's mother and that of District Attorney Dunwiddie, Judge H. L. Maxfield in municipal court this morning held one of his own and refused to send a little fellow from Edgerton to the reform school. The court knows conditions at the reform school. He believes there is a far better future for the lad through the medium of some person who will look after and care for him better than his mother, or his father, or his guardians unknown. Incidentally the judge sends out the plea for a home for the boy.

The mother, through the district attorney, charged her son as being incorrigible and continually truant from school. Although only fourteen, he has been working on a farm and told quite a tale of hardships suffered at the hands of his employer as well as other like instances as far back as he can remember. If he happened to make a mistake or incur the anger of the farmer, he said, he was liable to be whipped. The mother said she had no other recourse but to turn the boy over to the reform school.

Any farmer or business man can secure more information by getting into communication with Judge Maxfield.

PREPARE FOR PICNIC FOR CONTEST BOYS

Craig and Markham Go to Rockford to Arrange Details for Community Event at Harlem Park on October 7.

Final arrangements are being perfected for the great picnic given at Harlem Park, Oct. 7, by the community co-operation committee of the Janesville Commercial club for the participants in the various contests conducted by the committee during the summer. Hugh Craig and Secretary Markham of the county organization of the Y. M. C. A. today went to Beloit and Rockford in preparation for the event.

The picnic, though given in honor of the contest boys, will be in the nature of a community affair. It is the hope of the men in charge to get many citizens of Rock county to the celebration as is possible. It will be a "mixer" at which people from throughout the entire county will be brought together. Efforts are being made to secure enough automobiles to take the entire party to Harlem Park, where the picnic will be held. H. H. Biles has been asked to head the transportation committee, and he is pushing the work of getting machines. The committee will undoubtedly be able to provide transportation for all of the contestants and those who desire that wherever possible people will furnish their own conveyance.

"There's a Reason"BEATON PASTOR OF COMMUNITY CHURCH

Former Minister of Congregational Church in This City Leads in Novel Religious Venture.

Dr. David Beaton, former pastor of the First Congregational church in this city, is a leader in a novel religious venture in Chicago. He will be minister of "The Community Church," Chicago, the services of which will be held in De Luxe theatre, Wilson and Clifton avenues. The opening service will be Sunday, Oct. 1, at eleven o'clock a. m. The church is open to persons of all religions, according to the announcement concerning it, which follows in part:

"The Community Church meets one of the imperative needs of the age. People of every creed find themselves living together in neighborhoods where it is impossible to supply churches for every denomination, yet desire a place of worship where they may still hold their individual beliefs. They seek a bond of religious fellowship and social service, not on a negative basis of denials, but on a positive basis of constructive thought and modern ideas of practical values. The church is a place where the dead past have no value or charm for them. The vital present with its new problems both of the body and soul commands their interest. This practical religious instinct leads them to require for themselves and concede to others, entire freedom of thought in all matters of faith and morals as taught by history, science, philosophy and religion. The Community Church realizes this demand of the spirit of our time. A church of this character, near Chicago, and which its membership includes sixteen different creeds, from Baptists to Unitarians, and embraces such, supposedly incompatible, elements as Roman Catholics and Methodists, has been drawing them together, and not being required to deny anything, they found that they had more to bind them together than they had to bind them apart. Their basis of fellowship was not born of the intellect alone, but of the heart spirit."

EVENING SCHOOL TO OPEN IN OCTOBER

School Will Be Free for All Men and Women Over Sixteen Who Are Not Attending Day Schools.

Director C. E. Hill of the Janesville continuation school announces the opening of the free evening school for men and women over sixteen years of age who do not attend the day-time schools. The classes will be held in the high school and Lincoln school building from 7:30 to 9:30 Tuesday and Thursday evenings of each week, beginning Tuesday, October 3rd, and continuing twenty weeks, exclusive of the holiday season.

The school will be under the direction of the Janesville board of industrial education. The evening school has become one of Janesville's prominent institutions, for the work of the past years has been given the stamp of approval by the community, and it is expected that this year the institution will bring even greater success than last year.

FORGER GETS YEAR UNDER STATE BOARD

Lure of Fast Car Costs Chester Barrett, Former Port Atkinson Boy, Year of His Liberty.

Chester Barrett, Cadillac, Mich., formerly of Port Atkinson, the twenty-one year old youth who gave a Milton garage man a $240 check for a "peachy fast running car," and who later confessed that the check was worthless, waived examination in municipal court this morning and was given a year's parole under the state board of control. Judge Maxfield deferred a prison sentence to give the lad a chance.

Barrett, infatuated with an automobile of the speed car type, signed his brother's name to the check. The paper was taken to the Milton bank, where an employee remembered that Barrett's brother who lives in Port Atkinson, was in the east at the time. A toll call to Port Atkinson established the truth of this belief and the young man was arrested by Constable Crandall.

POTATO PROSPECTS APPEAR BRIGHTER

Expect Drop in Prices This Week, Say Janesville Dealers.—Michigan Crop Abundant.

The heavy clouds of gloom that shrouded potato prices are beginning to disperse before the bright rays of a more complete knowledge of conditions. Especially is this true of the much bemoaned potato crop, which was believed to have perished miserably in all its favorite haunts. Reports from Michigan show that all through the northern part of the lower peninsula, excellent potato country there was a good yield. The upper part of this state is shipping large quantities, and other potato-raising communities have overcome their premature depression because of more hopeful prospects. As yet the price has not dropped in Janesville, but merchants this morning predicted that the inflated prices that have prevailed for several weeks will very likely suffer a decided drop some time this week.

Fresh vegetables were plentiful this morning, with very little change in price. When the Tuesday freight comes in there will undoubtedly be a falling off in some prices with a greater selection of products.

Prices Paid Producers.—Top lots: Straw, $6.00@7.00; hay, $10@13; oats, 40@45c bushel; corn, 23@25c; barley, 1.15@1.16; wheat, 90c@1.20; rye, 60c@81.

TO BUILD LAST LINK IN EVANSVILLE ROAD

Town of Janesville Electors Will Hold Special Election to Vote Means of Providing Funds.

The last link of county built highway on the Janesville-Evansville road is about to be constructed in the town of Janesville, extended from the east of Leyden. The contract has already been let for the work under the direction of County Road Commissioner C. E. Moore, and grading has been started. As matters stand, however, there are sufficient funds available for building but one mile of the work this year. To make possible a completion of the entire stretch, at once, a special meeting of the electors of the town of Janesville has been called for Saturday afternoon, Sept. 30, at two o'clock, to take action providing money for the entire two miles of construction work. A petition of property owners calling for such a meeting has been filed in the office of the town clerk, Arthur M. Church, who has issued the call. It is probable that money appropriated for another piece of road work will be transferred, or an advance on the 1917 road fund to be collected in this fall's tax levy, will be drawn. When the two miles of highway are completed the whole distance from Janesville to Evansville will be a county gravel macadam paved highway, one of the best in Rock county.

QUESTIONS ABOUT FOOD

Q.—Is it not true that sulphur dioxide gas used to bleach dried and dried fruits is entirely evaporated by the time the fruit reaches the consumer?

A.—Most of the sulphur dioxide gas does evaporate. Some of it, however, is dissolved by the watery juices of the fruit. In the case of dried fruits the amount of water is of course greatly diminished and as a result the quantity of sulphur dioxide dissolved is lessened. No matter how thoroughly the fruits are dried, a small amount of water, which the scientific calls hygroscopic moisture, is bound to remain. This is something that cannot be eliminated as long as fruit is kept in the open atmosphere.

This hygroscopic moisture is also capable of dissolving sulphur dioxide. When sulphur dioxide and water combine they form an exceedingly injurious acid known as sulphurous acid. This chemical union takes place in the fruit precisely as it does in the laboratory.

Consequently when sulphur-bleached fruits are consumed the poisonous sulphurous acid is taken into the system.

Because of the ease with which sulphurous acid unites with the oxygen of the air to form sulphuric acid there is good reason to believe that the final product of sulphur bleaching is sulphuric acid.

Sulphuric acid has an exceedingly destructive action on organic tissue. Its effects on the delicate mucous lining of the digestive tract can be readily seen in the case of those people who proclaim the virtues of "bleaching" food by means of that chemical bedbug and vermin exterminator, the fumes of burning sulphur. Scarcely a mere sweep of the hand over the whole question of its dangerous effects on the human system.

These same optimists have never been able to inform us how to remove the poisonous sulphuric acid from the fruits, made ghastly white with their miserable bug-killer.

PLAIN FACTS.

The Minneapolis Journal publishes the following editorial on the democratic "raid on the farmer":

"I have not time to describe in detail the havoc wrought by the tariff act of 1913 (the Underwood-Simmons law). I shall only refer to one matter, the tariff made upon the farmer. Nearly all of their products were either put upon the free list, or so greatly reduced as to be practically on the free list. Had it not been for the great European war, our farmers would have sustained great losses from this change in our tariff. With a wheat crop of a billion bushels in Canada in 1915, our wheat farmers, for the great war, would have had sixty-cent wheat instead of a dollar a bushel and over. The main crop of the South, cotton, has practically no competition, and hence is immune from tariff legislation. Senator Knute Nelson's speech reviewing democratic legislation in the senate."

Senator Nelson has never been a high tariff man. His vote in 1889 for the Mills "horizontal reduction" bill, when he represented the old fifth Minnesota district in the house, is still remembered as a courageous act, for he alone of the republican majorities so voted. But he has always advocated the necessity for a moderate tariff, adequate to protect American industries from undue foreign competition.

The senator now makes timely allusion to the democratic raid on the farmer, planned and carried out in the tariff bill passed as soon as possible after the election of Mr. Wilson. Fortunately for the farmer, that raid was made, in effect, by the war, which furnished to his products the same effect in price uplift that a protective tariff would have done.

Without the war, the wheat farmers of the United States would have lost, as Senator Nelson shows, four hundred million dollars on the 1915 crop alone, and the loss would have been due to the refusal of the democratic congress to continue the protective tariff for their product. Tremendous losses would have been scored on other staple crops—all except cotton, the staple crop of the South, for which there is no little competition, but there is no need of a protective tariff.

STREET CORNERS.

When some individual, be it a child just able to walk by itself, or some old person, weakened by age and decrepitude, or some young man or woman, or school boy or girl, is seriously injured at one of our street crossings, particularly at Main and Milwaukee or River and West Milwaukee streets, then the city authorities will take the necessary of placing a check upon vehicles and not before. Janesville evidently must be taught by experience and not take time for the forelock in time to prevent accidents, but rather wait and look the barn door after the horse is stolen.

Hardly a day passes but what nervous persons are not given decided scares by the narrow margin by which accidents are averted on the main streets of the city. It does no good to station a police officer at the corners in question, if his sole idea of duty is to stand like a post on one of the corners safe from all danger himself while others hazard their life and limb crossing between the shifting streets, rapidly running automobiles or carelessly driven vehicles. An automatic figure would serve the purpose just as well for all intents and purposes.

Recently an auto driven by an inexperienced driver crashed into a store front on South Main street, owing to crowding of the park space and the presence of a street car. Fortunately no one was injured, but the presence of the street car stopping some times for the space of several minutes at the intersections of Main and Milwaukee streets, is a menace to the auto drivers and the public as well. It would appear that something could be done to eliminate this danger.

It would also seem possible to instruct the officers in charge of street traffic to be more attentive to their duties and watch more closely the pedestrians and the autos and other vehicles so as to avoid, if possible, an accident that might prove fatal to someone loved and dear which is sure to follow the present haphazard condition that exists.

ELECTION FRAUDS.

In spite of political corruption, the ballot box seems freer from fraud than formerly. Fraud has grown more refined and subtle. Biting repeaters and stuffing ballot boxes was a coarser kind of corruption that has largely been done away with. The average voter has not probably grown more honest. Some men who would scorn to accept a bribe will vote for the candidate that gives them free rides to the polls. Some who do not sell out for money are impressed by the candidate who offers suitable refreshment. Others who similarly would refuse cash are convinced that public good requires the election of the man who promises jobs most freely. And still others have no scruples about taking money as payment for time spent in political work.

But the secret ballot has accomplished much in making it difficult to "deliver the goods." The nimble voter is too easily able to sell out to both sides. Realizing this, the politicians usually prefer methods of influence that are less obvious.

HUGHES' CANDIDACY. Wisconsin has had an opportunity of judging of the candidacy of Charles Hughes, republican nominee for the presidential chair. His visit to the Fox River valley and Milwaukee last week was the occasion of an ovation seldom given to a man in public life. Business was suspended during the time he visited the various cities and his audiences consisted of thousands of the voters of the state who will be directly benefited by the change in administration policies that are bound to come if Hughes and a republican congress are elected. General impression is that Hughes made a most favorable impression, and it is the opinion of the voters of Wisconsin in general that it is most certain Wisconsin will give the Hughes ticket a majority in keeping with the usual republican custom of many years past.

There does not appear to be much anxiety on the part of the republican county ticket aspirants over their coming election. They take it as a matter of course the country will be republican by a rousing majority, which it will.

Irresponsible youngsters who use their parents' autos for joy rides and delight in races through resident districts, will be brought up with a quick turn if their parents discover the use to which their cars are being put.

That menacing apparition in the school house door is not the Queen of the Amazons in all her war paint, but merely an imitative parent come to complain because Johnny was kept fifteen minutes after school.

Thus far the Janesville Traction company has not installed all their new iron poles that were to be in place by May 20, 1916. Perhaps, however, they meant next May. If so they still have time.

The Milwaukee Journal is trying hard to make the campaign issue pro-German, or anti-German. They do not seem to realize they are alone in their efforts, which even a blind man can read through.

That petted boy over whom mother sheds so many tears, is not setting out to explore the jungles of Africa, but merely entering the freshman class at a college two hours' ride from home.

It would appear that even the state fair was not a financial success after all, despite the free use of explosives in the advertising columns of the press.

The voter feels like a king as he listens to the respectful adulation of the candidates, but that feeling doesn't last long after election.

If you want to hold on to your real estate don't advertise it in the newspapers. It would bring too many attractive offers.

Both parties promise prosperity, and they will, at least produce it among the contractors that build marble post offices and dredge out creeks.

THE YELLOW CARBUNCLE.

I like the Indian summer well, It is a time of cheer, Although I own I cannot tell Exactly when it's here.

(This week's mystery.) Jason Watsover, with curious jerky movements, was hanging out the family wash. It was a windy day of the year 1812, and every now and again the ends of Jason's necktie would blow out of his vest and down the back of his neck.

An observant onlooker would have noticed something curious about the man's proceedings. There were only three pieces in the wash, and one was red, one was white and one was blue. A red overshirt, a white undershirt, and a blue—ahem. Jason Watsover hung them up in that patriotic order,

The bright lights of an evening gathering show up mercilessly the defects of a poor complexion. But the regular use of makes it as easy to have a naturally beautiful skin as to cover up a poor one with cosmetics. It lessens the tendency to pimples, redness and roughness, and in a very short time the complexion usually becomes clear, fresh and velvety.

In severe or stubborn cases, Resinol Soap should at first be aided by a little Resinol Ointment. All druggists sell them.

After all, tender skin and that Resinol Shaving Soap prevent irritation.

By the time the soldiers had passed, he had dug a hole three feet deep. As the last strains died away, he began filling it up again, completing the work at five minutes to six.

AUTO BUMPS FARMER'S RIG BUT MAN REFUSES TO MAKE TROUBLE FOR MOTORISTS

More damage was done to the automobile of L. L. Merrick Saturday night than to the farmer's rig when it ran into the buggy at the corner of South Third and South Main streets. Lee was a passenger with Mr. Merrick. The lights were smashed, the radiator was slightly saved in and one mudguard was broken. The farmer had no complaint to offer and drove on home after refusing to give the police his name or address.

NAMES DIETZ'S INN AND WILLIAMS AGAIN FOR SUNDAY SELLING

Evidence Secured in Municipal Court
May Be Used Against South
Janesville Saloons.

Further evidence against Frank Williams, proprietor of the Northwestern Hotel, and also involving O. J. Dietz, proprietor of the Auto Inn, both of South Janesville, and which came into the hands of District Attorney Stanley G. Dunawidde this morning. The testimony was recorded verbatim and will be available in the Sunday afternoon court cases against the roadhouse keepers should the district attorney see fit to start actions.

The information came from Z. A. Johnson, a Stoughton man, who came to Janesville Saturday to get away from the Dane county oasis. He went to South Janesville yesterday, he said, and it was there that he secured the whiskey which made him drunk. Johnson said he had no trouble in getting the liquor.

In the Northwestern Hotel, Williams place, four or five men were buying drinks and drinking, Johnson testified. He got his share there, he said. At Dietz's Auto Inn, the frame structure nearest the Stoughton station, he was the only one to get drinks, at least during the period he was in the building, he stated to the court.

Johnson's testimony came as a surprise and when Judge Maxfield learned that the man claimed to have bought his liquor at the South Janesville hotels, he immediately called stenographers to record the story Johnson would tell.

Williams at present is defendant on charges alleging him to be the keeper and proprietor of a disorderly house. It was started by the state's attorney after sixteen and seventeen year old Edgerton girls told revolting tales of a portion of a morning spent in Williams' place. He was set for the circuit court. It originally arose in municipal court, but Williams' counsel, Edward H. Rasmussen, an eminent judge against Judge Maxfield and the latter consented to the change of venue to the circuit court.

MISS HAZEL BRENNAN IS SCARED BY A MAN

Despite Threats She Rouses Help by Screams Saturday Night When Attacked by Stranger.

Loud screams of Miss Hazel Brennan, 19, daughter of William A. Brennan, 109 North Washington street, a clerk at the Golden Eagle, startled the neighborhood in Washington street at 6:30 o'clock Saturday evening when a man grabbed her as she passed the residence of Hugh M. Joyce at No. 23, less than half a block from her home. Despite threats not to make an outcry Miss Brennan screamed and screamed loudly. Her mother heard her and came to the door at the next instant. Neighbors crowded there. Then the assailant thrust her aside and ran down Wall street.

This was the second time the young lady met the man that evening. But a few minutes before as she was passing the Five Points he addressed her, but she continued on her way, paying no attention to his remarks. Two blocks away he confronted her again and then she yelled. She thought he was a stranger.

OBITUARY.

Mrs. Bridget Rooney.
Mrs. Bridget Rooney passed away at her home, 226 Park street, at half past five Saturday afternoon. Mrs. Rooney was born in Ireland, 1826, and came to America in 1849, and to Janesville in 1851. During her long residence here she has become a devoted member of St. Patrick's church. She was a devoted mother and a devoted friend. She was a true Irish woman of the old school, and one who occupied a place in the hearts of the Janesville people that will be hard to fill. She is survived by seven children: William Rooney of Nevada, Mo.; Frank Rooney of Oklahoma City, Okla.; Henry Rooney of Sioux Falls, S. D.; Mrs. Lawrence McCue of Milwaukee; Mrs. Michael McCue of Milwaukee; Mrs. Aloisius Kewan of Milwaukee; Mrs. P. Cullen of Milwaukee. The funeral was held this morning from St. Patrick's church at nine o'clock, with Dean Reilly celebrating requiem high mass. The interment was in Mt. Olivet cemetery. The pallbearers were: Henry, Will, Aloisius and Thomas Rooney, Mark Cullen and Frank McCue.

James F. McCue.
Word has been received here of the death of James F. McCue of Milwaukee, which occurred this morning at eleven o'clock at his late residence, 1111 Broadway street, in Milwaukee. Mr. McCue was born in Janesville in 1864, and for thirty years resided in this city. For the past two years he had resided in Milwaukee, where at the time of his death he occupied the position of assistant yardmaster for the Northwestern road.

Nearly eight weeks ago Mr. McCue was overcome by the heat, and since that time has been gradually weakening, until the end came quietly this morning. Mr. McCue will long be remembered by the people of Janesville as a most capable and upright man. He was one of the few men who could happily combine the authority of the corporation with the cordial and openhearted characteristics of a friend. He was for thirty-eight years a trusted employee of the Northwestern road.

The deceased is survived by his wife, who was Miss Nellie Mannion of this city; by two children, Mrs. John McCue, Milwaukee, and Frank McCue of New Butler, Wisconsin, and by his mother, Mrs. Mary McCue of 309 Jackson street; a sister, Mrs. J. WEDS BELOIT GIRL; FATHER APPROVES

Commodore Doran of Chicago, of Yachting Fame, Surprised, Then Pleased at Son's Marriage.

The marriage of Myron Doran of Chicago, and Miss Julia Garrity of Beloit, at South Beloit last week, was of interest to Janesville residents.

Miss Garrity has visited in Janesville and has many friends here. A Chicago newspaper gives the following account of the scene which occurred when the youthful bridegroom broke the news to his father:

Commodore "Bob" Doran of yachting fame has a son taken in his sails Thursday when his son, Myron, 22, bore down on him with a pretty girl in tow and lustily sang out:

"Look, pop, I'm married. Ain't she a peach?"

Forgetting, under the smile of the former Miss Julia Garrity, age 20, of Beloit, Wis., that his son was at that moment supposed to be studying in college, the commodore exclaimed:

"Whew, I'd say she is! She's—"

"Yeh—," encouraged Myron, and Mrs. Myron Doran blushed.

"—but, but—," began the commodore as he recovered, "wh—, wh—, did—say, what is the idea?"

"Look again and you'll see," replied the young man proudly. Commodore looked again and saw. The commodore is that I didn't know it in time to advise you to do this very thing. Call on mother while I get hold of some jewelry for the finest diamonds ring I can buy and—say, somebody get my yacht ready for the youngsters' honey-moon, or a special car or something."

Then while the commodore was communicating with several jewelers young Doran told his story.

"I was taking a summer course in Beloit, preparatory to finishing at the Illinois university. About a week ago I decided to get married."

We got up early this morning and crossed over the state line to South Beloit, Ill., and woke up Father P. H. O'Shaughnessy at eight o'clock and had him marry us. The secret was too good to keep, so we hunted up dad."

The bride is the daughter of Thomas H. Garrity of Beloit, and the groom is Myron Doran, son of the Gloria Light company of Chicago. The newlyweds plan to spend a week on the commodore's yacht and then go south for several weeks.

"What a fine man!" cried the child.
Then Sibert was flinging the nose of Duane's neck and unrolling the hands round his arms. The spellbound crowd broke to hoarse exclamations.
"See there, my good friends, how many you're hearing the wrong man," burst out the cowboy, as he made the repeated hiss. "You're all a lot of wise rangers. How!"
He tried Duane and thrust the bone-handled gun back in Duane's holster.
"You're a good one, look you pulled a stunt! But don't try the like again. And now, I'll gamble there's a hell of a lot of bad work back Duane's named for, which all he never done. Four away there. Where's his horse? Duane, the real's son out of Siblety."
Sibert swept the caving watchers aside and pressed Duane toward the horse, which another cowboy held. Mechanically Duane mounted, felt a lift as he went up. Then the cowboy's hand face softened in a smile.
"At seven o'clock I didn't mind of me to say that that road quick?" he said, frankly.
He led the horse out of the crowd. Alken joined him, and between them they escorted Duane across the plaza. The crowd appeared frostily down to follow.
Alken paused with his big hand on Duane's knee. In it, unconsciously, probably, he still held the gun.
"Duane, a word with you," he said. "I believe you're not so black as you've been painted. I wish there was time to say more. Tell me this, anyway. Do you know the Ranger Captain MacNelly?"
"I do not," replied Duane, in surprise.
"I met him only a week ago over in Nebraska," went on Alken, hurriedly. "He declared you never killed my wife."

"It ain't him!"
I didn't believe him—argued with him. We almost had hard words over it. Now—I'm sorry. The last thing he said was: 'If you ever see Duane don't kill him. Send him into my camp after dark.' He meant something strange. What—I can't say. But he was right, and I was wrong. If Lucy had batted an eye I'd have killed you. Still, I wouldn't advise you to hunt up MacNelly's camp. He's clever. Maybe he believes there's no treachery in his new ideas of ranger tactics. I tell you for all it's worth. Good-by. May God help you further as he did this day!"
Duane said good-by and touched the horse with his spur.
"So long, Buck!" called Sibert, with that frank smile breaking warm over his brown face; and he held his sombrero high.

CHAPTER XIV.

When Duane reached the crossing of the roads the main Fairfield on the spur was seemed to be the thing that tipped the oscillating balance of decision in favor of that direction. If he had been driven to hunt up Jeff Alken, now he was called to find this unknown ranger captain. In Duane's state of mind clear reasoning, common sense, or keenness were out of the question. He went because he felt he was compelled.

Dusk had fallen when he rode into a town which inquiry discovered to be Fairfield.

There did not appear to be any camp on the outskirts of the town. But as Duane sat his horse, peering around and undecided what further move to make, he caught the glint of flickering lights through the darkness. Heading toward them he saw the moving forms of men and heard horses. He advanced naturally, expecting any moment to be halted.

"Who goes there?" came the sharp call out of the gloom.

Duane pulled his horse. The gloom was impenetrable.

"One man—alone," replied Duane.

"What do you want?"

"I'm trying to find the ranger camp."

"You've struck it. What's your errand?"

"I want to see Captain MacNelly."

"Get down and advance. Slow. Don't move your hands. It's dark, but I can see."

Duane dismounted, and, leading his horse, slowly advanced a few paces. He saw a dimly light object—a gun—before he discovered the man who held it. A few more steps showed a dark figure blocking the trail. Here Duane halted.

"Here, ranger, understand this. My visit is peaceful—friendly if you'll let it be. Mind, I was asked to come here—after dark."

Duane's clear, penetrating voice carried far. The listening rangers at the camp-fire heard what he said.

"Ho, Pickens! Tell that fellow to wait," replied an authoritative voice. Then a slim figure detached itself from the dark, moving group at the camp-fire and hurried out.

"Better be foxy, Cap," shouted a ranger, in warning.

"Shut up—all of you," was the reply.

This officer, obviously Captain MacNelly, soon joined the two rangers who were confronting Duane. He had no fear. He strode straight up to Duane.

"I'm MacNelly," he said. "If you're my man, don't mention your name—yet."

All this seemed strange to Duane, in keeping with much that had happened lately.

"I met Jeff Alken to-day," said Duane. "He sent me—"

"You've met Alken?" exclaimed MacNelly, sharp, eager, low. "By all that's holy!" Then he appeared to catch himself, to grow restrained.

"Men, fall back, leave us alone a moment."

The rangers slowly withdrew.

"Buck Duane! It's you?" he whispered, eagerly.

"Yes."

"If I give you my word you'll not be arrested—you'll be treated fairly—will you come into camp and consult with me?"

"Certainly."

"Duane, I'm sure glad to meet you," went on MacNelly; and he extended his hand.

Amazed and touched, scarcely realizing this actuality, Duane gave his hand and felt an unmistakable grip of warmth.

"It doesn't seem natural, Captain MacNelly, but I believe I'm glad to meet you," said Duane, soberly.

"You will be. Now we'll go back to camp. Keep your identity mum for the present."

He led Duane in the direction of the camp-fire.

"Pickens, go back on duty," he ordered, "and, Beeson, you look after this horse."

When Duane got beyond the line of mesquite, which had hid a good view of the camp site, he saw a group of perhaps fifteen rangers sitting around the fires, near a long, low shed where horses were feeding, and a small adobe house at one side.

"We've just had grub, but I'll see you get some. Then we'll talk," said MacNelly. "I've taken up temporary quarters here. Have a rustler job on hand. Now, when you're eaten, come right into the house."

Duane was hungry, but he hurried through the ample supper that was set before him, urged on by curiosity and astonishment. While eating he had bent keen eyes around him. After a first quiet scrutiny the rangers apparently paid no more attention to him. They were all veterans in service—Duane saw that—and rugged, powerful men of iron constitution. Despite a general conversation of campfire nature, Duane was not deceived about the fact that his advent had been an unusual and striking one, which had caused an undercurrent of conjecture and even consternation among them. These rangers were too well trained to appear openly curious about their captain's guest. As it was, Duane felt a suspense that must have been due to a hint of his identity.

He was not long in presenting himself at the door of the house.

"Come in and have a chair," said MacNelly, motioning for the one other occupant of the room to rise. "Leave us, Russell, and close the door. I'll be through these reports right off."

MacNelly sat at a table upon which was a lamp and various papers. Seen in the light he was a fine-looking, soldierly man of about forty years, dark-haired and dark-eyed, with a bronzed face, shrewd, stern, strong, yet not wanting in kindness. He scanned hastily over some papers, fussed with them, and finally put them in envelopes. Settling back in his chair, he faced Duane, making a vain attempt to hide what must have been the fulfillment of a long-nourished curiosity.

"Duane, I've been hoping for this for two years," he began.

Duane smiled a little—a smile that felt strange on his face. He had never been much of a talker. And speech here seemed more than ordinarily difficult.

MacNelly must have felt that.

He looked long and earnestly at Duane, and his quick, nervous manner changed to grave thoughtfulness.

"Ever hear from home since you left Wellston?" he asked, abruptly.

"No," replied Duane, sadly.

"That's tough. I'm glad to be able to tell you that up to just lately your mother, sister, uncle—all your folks, I believe—were well. I've kept posted. But haven't heard lately."

Duane averted his face a moment, hesitated till the swelling left his throat, and then said, "It's worth what I went through to-day to hear that."

"I can imagine how you feel about it. When I was in the war—but let's get down to the business of this meeting."

He pulled his chair close to Duane's.

"You've had word more than once in the last two years that I wanted to see you, why didn't you hunt me up?"

"I supposed you imagined me one of those gun-fighters who couldn't take a dare and expected me to ride up to your camp and be arrested."

"That was natural, I suppose," went on MacNelly. "You didn't know me, otherwise you would have come. I've been a long time getting to you. But the nature of my job, as far as you're concerned, made me cautious. Duane, you're aware of the hard name you bear all over the Southwest?"

"Once in a while I'm jarred into realizing," replied Duane.

WIDOW OF MISSIONARY TO THE DAKOTA INDIANS DIES SUNDAY AT BELOIT

Beloit, Sept. 25.—Mrs. Anna B. Riggs, 80 years old, widow of the Rev. Steven R. Riggs, pioneer missionary among the Indians in Minnesota and the Dakotas, died suddenly here Sunday.

Mrs. Riggs was with her husband in Minnesota during the Indian massacres.

The national guard

For defense against invasion, our real national guard is the millions of stalwart, young Americans in all walks of life, who must respond to their country's call for training and service in the ranks of our army and navy. For defense against invasion of the elements CERTAIN-TEED Roofing is the real "national guard".

Certain-teed Roofing protects our buildings from the violence of storms; successfully resists the attacks of rain, hail, sleet and snow; is unaffected by the sharp assaults of frost, and the withering fire of mid-summer sun. It even withstands the ravages of time, for CERTAIN-TEED Roofing is guaranteed for 5, 10 or 15 years, according to ply (1, 2 or 3). Experience proves that it will out-last the period of guarantee.

The long life of CERTAIN-TEED is due to the fact that it does not dry out, as ordinary roofing does. This is because it is made of the best quality roofing felt, thoroughly saturated with a blend of soft asphalt—the formula of the General's Board of Expert Chemists. This soft saturation is then covered with a coating of a harder blend of asphalt, which prevents the drying-out process, and keeps CERTAIN-TEED impervious to the elements for years after the harder, drier kinds of roofing have dried out and gone.

CERTAIN-TEED is made in rolls; also in slate-surfaced shingles. There is a type of CERTAIN-TEED Roofing for every kind of building, with flat or pitched roofs, from the largest sky-scraper to the smallest residence or out-building.

CERTAIN-TEED is sold by responsible dealers all over the world, at reasonable prices. Investigate it before you decide on any type of roof.

LEFTY WILLIAMS WINS AND SOX HAVE CHANCE

Batters Cullip in Pitchers' Battle and Aided by Errors Whit Sox Victorious and Climbing.

Sunday's game with the Yankees was a pitchers' battle between Cullip and Williams, the White Sox winning 2 to 1 with the assistance of errors. Cullip held the White Sox to four hits in seven innings. Williams allowed six hits, but the Sox scored their only run. Chicago scored their first on a single, two sacrifices and Pipp's fumble of Jackson's hit.

Near Post Mortem.
Detroit's victory put the Tigers within three games of the lead, but as they have only four more games to play they can be counted out of the running. The Sox are but little better off, with two yet to go, to Boston's eight, but there are a lot of possibilities hidden in those eight. Should the Red Sox lose four and the Sox win their five, there would be a tie at the end. Should the champions drop five and the White Sox win all of theirs, it would be a close race for the crown. Here is the short order menu:

Boston	5	1
Chicago	4	5
Detroit	4	3

FLUKE HOMER BEATS REDS AT CLEVELAND

Ball Runs Under Fence Netting Four Runs, Which Defeats World's Champions.

With the bases filled and one out in the fifth inning, Kavanagh, hitting for Brooklyn, drove a blazing grounder over the right base which rolled under the screen in far left field. The drive went for a home run and Cleveland checked the championship advantage of Boston. The score was 5 to 4.

Leonard, aside from a streak of wildness, pitched great ball, as did Hoshing and Taggart. Although the game to Cleveland, while Chicago and Detroit won. The champions are now two and a half games ahead of Chicago and three games ahead of Detroit. Boston still has one game to play, Chicago five and Detroit four. The standing:

HARD FIGHT CERTAIN IN THE BIG NINE

BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.

Chicago, Sept. 25.—A merry fight for championship honors in the "big nine" otherwise known as the western conference, appears certain this year. St. Louis, which was tied last year for the title, loses only four men by graduation. Chicago will have almost an entire team of veterans. Illinois will have a strong opposition, although several of last year's stars will be missing. Iowa's entry will be built around many veterans.

Ohio State and Purdue, however, have sent out tales of distress, but as they rarely cut much of a figure in deciding the conference championship, their teams will be about what is expected. Cleo O'Donnell, now coach at Purdue, is expected to put a factor into the race, but the team which represented the Indiana college last fall, Indiana, with a team built around several of last year's stars, and with Coach Rivald O. Strheim in charge, will be a dark horse entry. St. Louis had wonderful success at Nebraska university and his efforts at Indiana will be watched with more than ordinary interest. Wisconsin, with a good number of men left over, will be a strong factor in the race. Northwestern probably will offer only its usual feeble resistance.

Twelve seasonal veterans answered the call at Minneapolis a few days ago when practice began. Only four players of last year's great team are definitely lost. These are Dunnigan, guard, Al Quidist, end; Turnquist, tackle, and Bierman, halfback. This year's lineup will show the following veterans: Baston, end; Sinclair, guard; Hansen, center; Hauser, tackle; Long, quarterback; Johnson, Wyman, fullback; Klefman and Sprafkin, backs.

Pittsford's graduation leaves a big hole in Purdue's line and Coach O'Donnell will have a great deal of trouble in filling his place. Indiana will be the first to "take the bait" and to re-organize a team. The first scheduled for Bloomington on Sept. 30.

TIGER ROOKIE WINS OVER JOHNSON, 6-5

Ehmke, Who Recently Set Boston Back a Notch, Startles Baldom By Beating Johnson.

Walter Johnson was beaten Sunday by Ehmke, Detroit's recruit from Syracuse, 6 to 5. The Washington star did not look to be in the usual form and was heavily at various stages of the game. Ehmke was good, outside of the fifth and seventh innings, when the nationals bunched hits on him. As Johnson cannot come back on Monday, this will be the first year since he has been in the league in which he has not won a game on the Detroit lot.

REPORT WEECHMAN READY TO FIRE JOE TINKER AS MANAGER OF THE CUBS

A persistent rumor states that this will be Joe Tinker's last year as manager of the Chicago Cubs. Although the manager of the team has declined to deny or affirm the rumor, it is known that he is far from satisfied with the showing which Tinker has made this season. It is the opinion of Chicago fans and critics that Tinker placed too high a value upon the material of the former Chicago Federal league team, which was absorbed into the Cubs when Weechman became president of the latter club. Tinker retained most of the Federal players who worked under him as manager of the Whites.

ARLIE MUCKS TO JOIN BADGER FOOTBALL CREW

Badger gridiron prospects were given a boost today with the announcement that Arlie Muck, who was a member of the squad this fall, will be a member of the team. The giant weight thrower should be a big help to the Badger line. He played fairly good football in his first year, 1914. In 1915 he kept out of football because of minor injuries which Badger coaches thought might handicap him in spring track and field meets.

FARNSWORTH TAKES PARKER-WILCOX CUP

Defeats E. C. Baumann One Up in Eighteen Holes in Last Handicap Match of Season.

The finals in the Parker-Wilcox trophy contest were played yesterday at the golf grounds by E. C. Baumann and Dr. F. B. Farnsworth, the latter winning one up in eighteen holes. The prizes for this tournament, which has occupied four weeks of play, were donated by George S. Parker and J. L. Wilcox. This will be the last handicap match this season.

The new addition to the club house will be completed in about two weeks. Changes in the main club rooms which involve dismantling the present ladies' locker room, will not be started until after the new locker room is ready for occupancy.

Sport Snap Shots MORRIS MILLER

Frank Chance, manager of the Los Angeles club, was notified by Miller, a statistician of the St. Louis National league team, that Hi Jasper, a pitcher who has been turned back to the Angels by St. Louis, had been released. Chance said Jasper would be suspended if he did not report.

By handing 239 chances without an error, Ed Egan, Eddie Mensor of the Spokane team of the Northwestern league is believed to have established a new baseball record. According to figures prepared by the league's official statistician Mensor this season handled thirty-one chances in five games at second base, ten chances at third base in three games, and 198 chances as outfielder in 106 games without an error.

Kenzie Kirkham, left fielder for the St. Joseph Western league team, has established a record in the world's record in batting. In the last thirty-nine times at bat he has made thirty-nine hits. Ty Cobb, in 1913, set a record of thirty-nine hits in thirty-nine times at bat. In his last fourteen times at bat Kirkham has hit safely every time. Last season he led the Northern league at batting, hitting .352.

For every officer there must be twenty-five privates, for every E. H. Southern ten thousand spear carriers, for Arthur Eastwood a hundred and one spears, and for a Ty Cobb a million "bushers."

Lee Asworthy, the new champion trotting stallion, which on two occasions over the North Randall track, Cleveland, trotted a mile in 2:00.4, stands barely 15.1 hands high, but for substance, quality, symmetry and speed his appearance is not a whit inferior to The Harvester, the old champion.

Kelly Harris, a well-known minor leaguer, who was with Hamilton in the Canadian league last season, has joined the American battalion enlisted for service in the European war. Harris' home is in Maryland, but he refused to be sent.

The Boston National league club does not exploit the fact in the papers, but nevertheless the Braves' base is the largest in either major league. Percy D. Haughton, Harvard's football coach, pulls down a big salary as president to represent the wealthy Boston men associated with him in the ownership. Then there is George Stallings, who is, with the exception of John McGraw, the highest paid manager in baseball. This last spring Stallings signed a five year contract at $18,000 a year. Johnny Evers is said to be pulling down $10,000, while Konetchy, ranking next among the players, is getting $8,000. The entire payroll for the season is probably very close to $150,000, or $12,500 every semi-monthly pay day during the six months of the season.

Paul Squibb, sensational halfback and fullback of the 1915 University of Chattanooga football team, will this season play on the Washington and Lee eleven.

The unofficial pitching records of the National league show that Lee Meadows, the spectacular pitcher of the St. Louis Cardinals, has started something like 50 games this season and that in 30 of them he had to be jerked off the hill. Meadows probably has established a record in this respect, in spite of his disposition to go badly before the end of the allotted nine innings Meadows has near an even break in games won and in point of effectiveness outranks a number of pitchers more highly regarded.

WHITEWATER SWAMPS FORT; STACK KNOCKED FROM BOX

Whitewater put a crimp in Fort Atkinson's prospects for the Central State league pennant when Ben defeated the Fort team, 9 to 2, yesterday on the losers' lot. Close to twenty-five hundred people saw the game. Pitcher Stack of the Fort was set upon from the start, and continuing a hitting streak he was forced to retire Boobe came on in his place, but was ineffective. Ben of Whitewater fanned seven and issued one pass and six hits. Fort pitchers were touched for nine.

EDGERTON WINS FIRST GAME; DEFEATS WATERTOWN 20-0

Edgerton, Sept. 25.—The Edgerton high school football team defeated the Watertown eleven yesterday at the Driving Park in the first game of the season by the score of 20 to 0 resulting from three touchdowns, one in the first, third and fourth quarters respectively. They failed to kick goal after the first touchdown. Fumbles were rather frequent on both sides. Edgerton scored their first touchdown a short time after the opening of the game, all of the gains being made on straight football through the line. Williams, who suffered an injured ankle last Thursday, went into the game in the third quarter, relieving Curran at quarter. He intercepted one of Watertown's forward passes near the fifty yard line and tore down the balance of the field for the second touchdown. Short of Edgerton, made a costly error when he fumbled the ball while being tackled when only a few yards from the opponents' goal. Coach Lamereaux used nearly every first and second string man during the course of the game, some remaining in for several downs and others longer, there being but four or five who played the entire game and some of these were switched to different positions. Watertown displayed better interference, but for all of that they could not gain consistently and had to resort to punting on most occasions after the third down. Ogden remained out of the game but it is expected he will be in the lineup for next Saturday's game with North Milwaukee, which undoubtedly will be one of the hardest games of the season. Watertown was penalized four times and the local team twice. A number of the members of the Stoughton team came down to witness the game and style of playing used by Edgerton, but no trick plays were uncovered. Walker of Madison refereed the game.

When the little man went to sleep the crab woke up, and finding things dull in the bucket, started exploring.

By careful navigation the crab reached the edge of the rack. The next moment it fell down, alighting on the little man's shoulder. Not feeling quite safe, it grabbed the voluminous ear of the little man in order to steady itself, and the passengers held their breath and waited for developments. But the little man only shook his head slightly.

"Did you get any reward when you took that dog home?"

"Well," said Mr. Walker, "if it's worth under a dollar to have a man and his wife and three children and the cook and two neighbors all look suspiciously at you and ask significant questions and doubt your statements about where you found the darned dog, I suppose I was rewarded."

A businesslike man stepped into a butcher's shop.
